Humble Beginnings

After the Fall of Saigon in 1975, droves of people from Vietnam fled the country and endured severe hardships in order to escape the new communist government. Two of the people from this mass exodus were Jong Kwok and Lee An-Bo Kwok, who fled Vietnam in 1978 and eventually settled in San Jose, California. Both were originally from Chợ Lớn, the Chinese district in Ho Chi Minh City (formerly Saigon). With no college education and only a Vietnamese high school diploma, Jong and Lee opened China Chen Restaurant in 1983 when San Jose's Vietnamese community was still in its infancy. Vietnamese restaurants in San Jose were few and far between in the early 1980s, so China Chen was one of the first restaurants in San Jose to serve customers the popular shrimp wonton egg noodles (mì sủi cảo) and fried flour cake (bánh bột chiên).

In 2017, Jong and Lee were able to retire and enjoy the fruits of their labor. Jong and Lee's nephew, Huy, has since taken over the family business. Generations of customers have enjoyed three decades of authentic Chinese/Vietnamese cuisine and Huy hopes to not only continue, but grow the family business to new heights. We thank you for your continued support.
